

Module 5 Rational

I wanted to make my website as simple and intuitive as possible without compromising structure and design. I decided to basically cut my site up in to 3 separate pages: The home page, the contact page, and the portfolio page. I also did not include a separate page for my resume because I want it to open in its own pdf for ease of viewing. All three of those pages will keep the header, footer, and nav bar. I would like to be able to make the link to the current page highlighted so the user knows what page they have clicked on. I decided as well to put the link to the resume in the middle of the navigation bar so that it is centered and potential employers could click on it without having to search. Basically my website aims to be structured easily and effectively while still being interesting and aesthetically pleasing.
